48th Reserve Divisional Signals, Royal Corps of Signals

- 1. The division was a first line Territorial Army formation. It was deployed to France on the 5th January 1940 to join I Corps. Following evacuation from Dunkirk on the 31st May 1940, the division came under Western Command. It came under Southern Command between the 2nd July and 6th August 1940, before joining VIII Corps on the 7th August 1940. It transferred to I Corps District on the 14th November 1941. On the 1st November 1942, it came under command of H.Q. East Riding & Lincolnshire District. The division was placed on the lower establishment and redesignated as a reserve division on the 20th December 1942, coming under command of G.H.Q. Home Forces but located in Northern Command. The change of role to a training and reserve division continued through 1943. The third brigade in the division, the 145th Infantry Brigade was disbanded on the 7th November 1943, and was not replaced. The reserve divisions were reorganised in July and August 1944.
- 2. This brigade was a first line T.A. brigade. The brigade was redesignated as a reserve infantry brigade on the 5th August 1944 (see next page). The existing units, with the exception of the 11th Bn. The Green Howards, were posted away. Three other battalions were posted in so the brigade became responsible for the continuation training and draft finding for the Yorkshire infantry regiments.
- 3. This battalion was the only original unit left in the brigade from the outbreak of war in September 1939. It transferred to the 114th Infantry Brigade on the 22nd July 1944, to continue its training role within the 38th Infantry (Reserve) Division.
- 4. This battalion does not appear on the order of battle after it left the brigade on the 26th July 1944, so it is assumed it was disbanded on or about this date.
- 5. This formation was a first line T.A. brigade. It was redesignated as a reserve infantry brigade on the 5th August 1944. The existing units were posted away, in July 1944, with three Scottish battalions replacing them during the same month, the brigade taking on the continuation training and drafting role for Scottish infantry regiments.
- 6. This battalion was the only original unit left in the brigade from the outbreak of war in September 1939. It transferred to the 114th Infantry Brigade on the 22nd July 1944, to continue its training role within the 38th Infantry (Reserve) Division.
- 7. This battalion transferred to the 140th Infantry Brigade, 47th Infantry (Reserve) Division on the 24th July 1944 and continued its training role.
- 8. As with the above battalions, this battalion continued its training and draft finding role, transferring to 113th Infantry Brigade, 38th Infantry (Reserve) Division.
- 9. The divisional troops were reduced during 1943 down the level required by the lower establishment.
- 10. This regiment was formed in March 1942, by the conversion of the 8th Bn. The North Staffordshire Regiment. It joined this division on the 26th December 1942, becoming the only artillery regiment in the division from March 1943. The regiment left the division on the 31st August 1944, to be disbanded. It was replaced on the 1st September 1944 by:-
  - 120th (South Midland) Field Regiment, Royal Artillery This regiment transferred in from the 61st Infantry Division.
- 11. Formed in July 1942 from a battery of the 67th Anti-Tank Regiment, this regiment joined the division on 5th September 1942.
