Future interim meetings: York is the only offer for September, January possibilities include London but alternatives are sought, May might be in Korea. 802.1h (bridging of Ethernet) requires a revision and it is intended to discuss a draft PAR this week. Should it change its title and become a standard?

Link aggregation: currently an 802.3 standard; so we want to move it into 802.1?

Editor's review of draft 1.3 of 802.1aj TPMR – Tony Jeffree

MAC status propagation entity has been added, with protocol to indicate link failure on the other port.

Additional protocol required to establish whether the peer understands MAC status propagation protocol, as the fallback is to force link down to indicate a failure on the other port.

MAC address transparency – Norm Finn.

Problem with the group MAC address used for LLDP as AD means that it passes through a provider net. He has sent the interpretation request to the IEEE to trigger an action on this, and proposes that in July we make the necessary motion to resolve the request.

VLAN Cross Connect – Nurit Sprecher.

802.1H Revision PAR – Tony Jeffree.

Words smithed for a revision PAR – Chair to distribute for agreement in July.

Future interim meetings – Tony Jeffree

Still looks like either York or Montreal as possibilities for the September interim meeting. The attendees by straw poll showed a slight preference for York; the Chair will pursue these options using this as guidance.

The Chair thanked the hosts, Linda Dunbar, Hui Zhao, and their staff at Huawei for organizing the meeting, and helping to ensure that it was both enjoyable and successful.
